Development Department	Dr.Web® software is developed in St. Petersburg, its historic home. The Development Department, headed by Igor Danilov, creates anti-virus products for the widest spectrum of operating systems and compatible applications.
Virus monitoring service	The global virus monitoring service collects samples of malicious programs all over the Internet. Updates are provided by several servers located in different parts of the globe. A hot update is released immediately after a new threat has been discovered and analyzed. Virus databases are updated as often as twice per hour.
Technical support	Doctor Web's experienced multilingual technical support team can assist customers in Russian, English, German, French, and Japanese.
Distribution of products	Doctor Web does not sell anti-virus products to end-users directly. All anti-virus applications and solutions are available through the company's partner network.
